What was best about the students at the School of Public Health and Health Services when I was a student

The students came from various disciplines, as well as from various parts of the country. The varied views helped me deal with the varied views I was to encounter.

What's best about the School of Public Health and Health Services at GW

Practical experience, exposure to Gordon Friesen and my internship with him.

What was best about living in the Washington, DC Area

The ability to view congressional hearing, take a short trip to what Health and Human Services which was then HEW, and being where the decisions were made, not just reading about them.

My message to applicants

Great school, great place to go to school.
